How would you estimate the balance between those three areas in this year's edition?

Examples:

There was only technological subjects

Small lack of cultural subjects

Opinions

What did you enjoy the most? What should we definitely keep for next year?

Lot of Diffit people (across cultures and work)

What annoyed you the most? What should we definitely try to change next year?

What did you enjoy the most? What should we definitely keep for next year?

Tech stuff, the keynotes was good, crypto (post-snowden) was good and I liked the kolab/dovecoats-talks...

I had fun, but still everything felt a little unplanned.

What annoyed you the most? What should we definitely try to change next year?

It felt a little "empty" and unplanned, a lot of the lectures was very basic, looking forward for more in depth talks next year.

Maybe next year drop the "social event" on friday if you have no plans for it. Then of course everything depends on what type of ppl. that shows up.

Still a good con, I had a fun time and talked to a lot of interesting people.

Subject areas

According to our manifesto "FSCONS should equally address the following subject areas: society, including, but not limited to, integrity, privacy, freedom of speech, human rights and access to knowledge ; culture, including art, but also covering a broader spectrum of newer cultural expressions ; technology, including software and hardware in a broad meaning, as well as questions of infrastructure and networks."

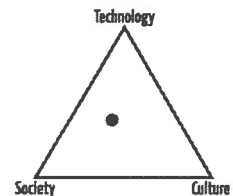

How would you estimate the balance between those three areas in this year's edition?

Examples:

There was only technological subjects

Small lack of cultural subjects

Expensive food
Program didn't mention other than titles of subjects —
— gave little meaning without having read the website.
Couldn't find the art exhibition.

Subject areas

According to our manifesto “FSCONS should equally address the following subject areas: society, including, but not limited to, integrity, privacy, freedom of speech, human rights and access to knowledge ; culture, including art, but also covering a broader spectrum of newer cultural expressions ; technology, including software and hardware in a broad meaning, as well as questions of infrastructure and networks.”

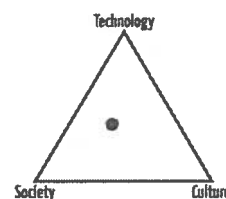

How would you estimate the balance between those three areas in this year's edition?

Examples:

There was only technological subjects

Small lack of cultural subjects

Opinions

What did you enjoy the most? What should we definitely keep for next year?

Powerful FOSS apps → Onucloud, Kolab etc → introduce them.

What annoyed you the most? What should we definitely try to change next year?

Internet connection was awful – interrupts frequently and was very strongly restricted → too strongly.
Maps would be useful → foreign people do not know Götterburg.
Also travelling instructions on paper would be useful.
It should be in category 3.1 as event in Thomson-Lectures system

Free comments

Some community communication would be useful →
→ mailing list with online archive.
Will there be any certificate of participation?
~~Let~~ Some web-based participants introduction list would be useful with contacts. Could not discuss with lot of people. Also → what they are using on their computers → which operating system (distribution) and which programs are important (in use) by them.
Some printers would be appreciated, e.g. to print boarding passes etc.
Please share more FOSS-related stuff → labels, etc.

A diverse program, what was very nice
was the line dystopia - utopia
A nice mix of topics

People could be more social,
~~say~~ maybe to encourage kambiulda
networking etc.

People arriving to lectures in the last 10 mins, interested in the next lecture, tend to get a bit noisy. Putting up signs reminding people to respect the lecture slots might help?

Subject areas

According to our manifesto “FSCONS should equally address the following subject areas: society, including, but not limited to, integrity, privacy, freedom of speech, human rights and access to knowledge ; culture, including art, but also covering a broader spectrum of newer cultural expressions ; technology, including software and hardware in a broad meaning, as well as questions of infrastructure and networks.”

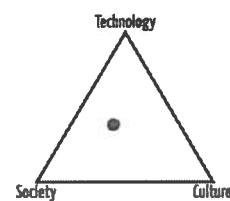

How would you estimate the balance between those three areas in this year's edition?

Examples:

There was only technological subjects

Small lack of cultural subjects

Opinions

What did you enjoy the most? What should we definitely keep for next year?

New Venue
Club Mate

What annoyed you the most? What should we definitely try to change next year?

C444
Lack of Club Mate Granat
